PRATTONIA

OF PRATT INSTITUTE - 1942

PT
1942 Cap 2

LS 30912

Dedication

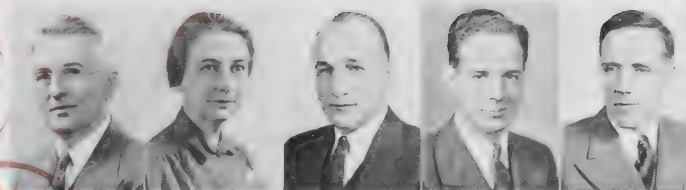

MR. CHARLES PRATT
I followed in the footsteps of his father by taking an active interest in the affairs of Pratt Institute. For several years he held the position of Treasurer of the Institute, and is now its President. His keen interest in the affairs of the student body, as witnessed by his participation in the Fall Festival, his work with the Student Council, his interest in the Prattonia, and his constant efforts to keep the Institute out in front, has brought about a deep feeling of affection for him in everyone connected with the Institute. To show a little of our affection, we of the Prattonia Board have the honor of dedicating this book to him.

Towering Far Above Her Neighbors . . .

PRATTONIA STAFF

AND ADVISORY BOARD

THIS year the book got off to a late start for it was not until late in January that the Student Council made its selections for the yearbook's staff. Mr. Petersen, one of the faculty advisors, had taken care of photographing the seniors so that when we started this headache was past. Bill Keppler, last year's editor, was re-elected to the position he held last year, while Nat Champlain, and Joseph Caroff were elected Photo Editor, and Art Editor respectively. Once this nucleus had been formed things started to hum and it wasn't long before the entire staff had been selected. The line-up for this year (so that you students can find out who is responsible for what and take care of him or her accordingly) is as follows:

THE governing power of Pratt Institute is in the hands of the Student Council. This organization is made up of the presidents from the various classes along with representatives from other chartered groups and clubs within the school. The council members can be found every other Monday at 12:30 in room 132, deciding the fate of the many school activities. This in itself is a task, as most of the members are usually suffering from acute indigestion, as the result of eating a quick lunch in an effort to reach the meeting on time. You try to decide the price of Prattonia after a bologna sandwich. Seriously though the Council has proven itself to be a great worth to the Institute and deserves recognition for all its endeavors.

S t u d e n t C o u n c i l

PRESIDENT LEONARD NIESE called the first meeting of the Council on Sept. 28. From that date on the body was concerned mainly with the Fall Festival which was under the leadership of Warren Sambach. In her minutes, Ruth Varvaro made the notation that the affair was a huge success. During the absence of Len from any of the meetings an able Vice-President, Janet Shoemaker, took over the proceedings.

The Tuesday afternoon dance situation took a lot of the Council's time this year, and much was done to improve the situation. Several girls, including the candidates for May Queen, were asked to appear at the dances and act as hostesses. This idea worked miracles, and a disappearing stag line was the result. This year canned music was used.

Another feature which was carried over from last year was popular pep-rallies. Here the students were led in cheers by the cheerleaders, and they met each member of the team. These rallies played a large part in bolstering our basketball team's morale.

The Men's Club acted as a host for the Council's party. It was a new idea, and it is being carried on the books as a date for next year. The female members of the Council had quite a time bowling and shooting pool, and a good time was had by all. In closing the Council wishes to thank the Student Body and members of the Faculty for the cooperation which they received this year.

FACULTY AND ADMINISTRATION

THE DIRECTORS

REGULATING and guiding the affairs of the Institute are the Directors, Mr. Arthur L. Cook of the School of Science and Technology, Mr. James C. Boudreau of the School of Fine and Applied Arts, Mr. Wayne Shirley of the School of Library Science, and Miss Joan M. Rock of the School of Home Economics. Together they have toiled and planned not only for their respective school, but also for the Institute as a whole. Upon them lie the many responsibilities incurred by the various school functions, and the far reaching effects of their aims are felt by the entire student body.

IT has been often said that, "College is just like a laundry. You get out of it just what you put into it, but you never recognize it." Here at Pratt Institute though, it is evident to every pupil that what he gets out of his schooling is not only due to his efforts, but also to the sincere and intelligent guidance, instruction, and friendship given him by the faculty members and other school assistants. The graduates will not only carry with them the knowledge they have gathered by speaking and listening to these teachers, but also the warm-hearted mannerisms and smiles with which they now associate them.—

SENIORS - PRATT INSTITUTE

P R A T T I N S T I T U T E

THE 1942 graduating class is the first group of war time graduates since June 1918. While all signs pointed to a change in our national status from peace time and defense activities to active participation in World War Number Two, its actual inception on December seventh came as an extreme shock.

The Art School has been on the alert for the last two years adjusting itself first to defense needs and later to "all out" war effort. In that short period we have established ourselves as a national influence in the fields of Structural Air Raid Precaution, Industrial Camouflage, and Military Tactical Camouflage as well as Graphic Propaganda. The seriousness and thoroughness of our contributions have received high commendation from the Army, the Navy and the Office of Civilian Defense.

This is a profoundly important period in American history calling upon all of us to give of our best. To the young men of the graduating group the assignment will be almost entirely in the uniformed branches of the war effort. The young women will be called upon not only to take the places ordinarily held by men in the professional art field, but, in addition, will have war service assignments that will call for as much contribution and sacrifice as the fighting men. The years ahead will not be easy yet it is possible for all of us to make them very worthy.

THE Art School is certainly a lively place. From the moment the first student cries, "Gee, no mail for me today", until the last one calls, "Did anyone see my red mittens", there's plenty of hard work that takes place.

Every major profession is sub-divided into a great many fields each having its own importance, and naturally art is no exception. Therefore I would like to describe a few of the different art students. The first outstanding type is the advertising designer. You know him, he's the fellow who brazenly stands in the subways, making faces at all the horrible car cards. But, who could blame him. Then comes the illustrator. He usually has a huge canvas in his hand, that is decorated with an interesting pictorial composition. If anyone compliments him on it he nonchalantly says, "Oh, that! Just something I whipped up", even if it did take him three months.

Industrial design students are constantly "eyeing" the convertibles on Ryerson Street, and thinking up new ways of streamlining them. Meanwhile the Interior designers probably have dreams of re-decorating the Institute, while the architects plan on a "brown-stone-stoop-less" Brooklyn. The only worry the art education student has is how to best correlate the techniques for handling these many different types.

Seriously though, the Art School is a wonderful place.

ARTS ASSOCIATION

WHEN all the girls in the art school get together they are known as the Paletteers. The functions of this group are mainly social and all very worthwhile. Every Christmas these girls dress dolls and fill stockings that are later distributed to needy children. This certainly sets the Art School humming and every one gets right into the Yuletide spirit of giving.

A spring banquet for all the girls, with a prominent woman artist as guest speaker is the most outstanding event of the year. The speaker has not been chosen as yet for this year, but the girls are all anxiously awaiting the announcement. The girls who have charge of the organization this year are:

Pres. June Howard
V. Pres. Virginia Thoren
Sec't. Norma Masters
Treas. Ann Hall

Of course these aren't the only times the girls get together. There are some very interesting "intrigues" that take place during the time the gals are putting their supplies in their lockers. You know what all "this" talk is about, so enough said. Probably the only other outstanding characteristic of these girls is a long hairdo, a sloppy sweater, saddle shoes, and the classical string of pearls which is all hidden under a dirty smock.

An organization of all the men in the Art School is the "Artsmen." The main purpose of this group is to promote social and athletic fellowship and the boys really have a great time. So far the most important event of the "Artsmen's" year has been a smoker, which was held at the men's club. Bowling, billiards and boxing events highlighted the evening, along with some amusing entertainment. The organization is now contemplating a dance in collaboration with the Paletteers which should prove to be a momentous affair for the Art School.

ACTIVE ARTISTS

The officers for this year are;

Pres. Al Aquino
V. Pres. Joe Parriot
Sec't. Frank Martarelli
Treas. Jerry Cominsky
Sports Mel Lewis
Social Seymour Kent
Pub. Howard Ferguson.

From the tallest, big Al Aquino, down to the five foot level, the artsmen this year are bigger and sharper than ever. The smocks are much oilier, their hair is wavier, and their clothes — well, they are the apple of a Pallateers eye. What girl could resist the combination of cerulian blue and pegged pants.

"THE ARCHITECTS"

AN organization of all architectural students in Pratt Institute, "The Architects", was founded to promote good fellowship along with social and athletic endeavors. This year the program has included a supper dance for all members last November at Hotel Commodore with Vaughn Monroe's orchestra; an introductory smoker at the Men's Club for incoming freshmen; and an end-of-the-year banquet, which is a tradition in the department. Athletically speaking, "The Architecs" sponsor intramural and interclass teams in basketball, bowling, table tennis, swimming and softball. The club's officers, elected by the entire departments are all seniors. This year they are;

Pres. Roger G. Spross
V. Pres. Richard A. Klient
Sect. Rosabel Robbins
Trea. Richard W. Bartlett

THE Junior Eastern Arts Association is an organization made up of all the students at Pratt Institute who are studying Art Education. The main purpose of these people is to acquaint themselves with the best and most contemporary techniques now being advocated in the educational field.

The highlight of the year for this association is the Eastern Arts Convention which is held every spring. At this time the students who are merely doing practice teaching may meet and talk with professional educators. Many prominent guest speakers also attend these conventions and lecture to large groups.

In general though the organization promotes good fellowship, teacher personality, and cooperation. The officers this year are;

Pres. Joseph Schaffer
Sec't. Otis Dudley
Treas. Gladys Spring

A N D T E C H N O L O G Y

GREETINGS to our engineer-graduates of 1942. This year brings, as never before, to each member of the graduating class, a problem in deciding his place in the world as an engineer-graduate. Shall it be with the armed forces, or with industry? Many will feel that military service should follow graduation. Others, who decide to carry on in a chosen profession, will no doubt make this decision with some hesitation. However, when the latter choice is made, it sends from our gates one more engineer for the two million technically trained men which is a conservative estimate of the number needed in war production.

In this mechanized war in which we are engaged, an engineer in industry must be considered a man behind the war machine and he is just as necessary to the completion of the task ahead as a man who carries a gun. There is, therefore, at this time an unparalleled opportunity for one and all of our engineers to render a much needed service to our country. I am confident that you will conscientiously carry on and so bring credit to Pratt Institute in your new adventures. We of the faculty extend to you our very best wishes as you join our alumni and bid you Godspeed.

INDUSTRY NEEDS...

THE most important thing that happened in the engineering school this year was the speed up program that affected everyone — even the instructors. The fourth year men were very disappointed to hear that due to shortage of time there would be no final examinations. (All moves to bring a protest about this were forcibly squelched.) The third year men learned that they would have to attend during the summer months. Oh, well, I shall be on my yacht, sailing up and down Long Island Sound, taking my engineering via a correspondence course. Another bit of news is the fact that the "Noted" Chemicals failed to capture the basketball title again this year. For four years they have tried and tried, but alack and alas they will have to send their sons to this place if they expect to take the banner home.

The social life of the engineer was not neglected even though we moved through the school a little more rapidly. The Third Year Chemicals started the year off with a very successful Chem Hop in the early part of the fall term. The profits from this dance, it is rumored, are going to the first third year Chemical who can understand just a wee bit about the annual $AlCl_3$ problem. Following this, a few months later, Schaeffers Brewery played host to the Mechs and Chems and showed them their plant, and for purely scientific reasons allowed the boys to sample . . . Some sampling was done.

The annual S&T dance was a big success, as always. It was held in the Hawaiian Room of the Park Central Hotel. It was an excellent affair, but the cloak room accommodations were not so hot: — how I got that derby of Mr. Beatty's I'll never know. Following in April the Chemicals have their annual banquet. There is nothing much one can write about that affair for most of it would be censored, and not because of war rumors. Winding up the social whirl, is the Senior Prom which will be held at the Essex House. Here the boys get together officially for the last time and really make a night and a morning of it. After graduation, and after relaxing for about a month to get over the shock, many men expect to go to work. Most of the Chemicals are going to TNT plants all over the U. S.: — I'm sure we will hear more of them as time goes on. The Mechs are being scattered to the winds as they enroll in the various training courses that the companies have to offer, and the Electricals are also being grabbed up by companies offering training courses which lead to excellent positions in industry.

We must grant some space to the combination made by joining up the chemical and electrical classes in that course taught by those two gentlemen from up New England way. One will never forget the goings on that occurred, or all the research that was carried on in the various subjects: — the News crossword puzzle for instance.

S & T SOCIETIES

ALTHOUGH the boys in engineering have plenty of work (it says here) they have ample time to foster their social obligations. Combining social with the practical the boys have joined the technical societies which have their branches at the Institute.

The Chemicals join the American Institute of Chemical Engineers. This body replaced the old Wholer Society, but kept many of its characteristics. Besides having many meetings of a technical nature, and sponsoring many inspection trips, especially to the neighboring brewery, the AICHE sponsors a formal dance and a banquet at which instructors and students let their hair down.

The Pratt Institute Branch of American Electrical Engineers holds its meetings with the purpose of giving the students practice in presenting technical papers, and acquainting them with electrical problems in industry. Inspection trips, long an important activity of this branch, were discontinued this year because of conditions brought about by the fact that many of the plants that had played hosts were excluding all visitors for fear of their being agents of foreign powers. Because of the accelerated educational programs taken on by most of the engineering schools during the year, it necessitated the calling off of the annual Student Convention.

A Student Branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers makes it possible for its members to gain information concerning the latest advances in mechanical engineering. This year men volunteered their services for the purpose of gathering technical information and presenting this information in the form of a paper to the remainder of the student body. The Society also attended the convention at the Hotel Astor this year . . . and could one forget that trip to Schaeffer's brewery.

T H E S C H O O L O F

THIRTY years ago we were Domestic Science; twenty years ago Normal Household Arts and Sciences; ten years ago, The School of Household Science and Arts; today The School of Home Economics. We have changed our name whenever it seemed necessary to better express a changing concept of the training we give.

Thirty years ago probably a count of two score would have numbered all the hospital dietitians in the country, and the dietitian in an industrial cafeteria was practically unknown. Today these dietetic departments are considered essentials, not fads nor frills, and each year we graduate dozens of splendid young women, well-qualified to make their service and professional contributions in these fields.

Thirty years ago home dressmaking, embroidery and fine mending were taught in our clothing courses to meet the needs of the times. Today dressmaking is taught in its broadest sense as clothing construction, and embroidery has long since been replaced by a more timely and practical study, for example, textiles and their economic significance. We have changed subject matter whenever it was evident that changing student or employment demands required new curricular treatment.

As little as ten years ago, one-year and two-year intensive technical courses were sufficient for meeting the employment specifications in a relatively limited number of "job-careers." Today the areas of employment have so increased and requirements in the various areas are now so numerous or so exacting, we have, of necessity, lengthened our courses, enlarged our curriculum and expanded our organization to keep pace with the changes.

As we review our past, every change has meant growth and improvement, broader thinking, clearer objectives, sounder education. Our future is dedicated to similar progress and always to change, if change means, as we believe it does, the obligation to provide the best possible education for living and working in a changing world.

WTHE School of Home Economics offers highly specialized courses, intensive in character, with theory and practice inter-related. They embody the best in fundamental principles, and are adequately flexible to keep pace with the trends of business and professional Home Economics." Everyone of us without exception has read this bit of prose before we entered the school, as it is contained in one of the many paragraphs in the school's catalog which all of us received while we were still busy reading our high school yearbook. Little did we realize that those fundamental principles would include such subjects as organic chemistry, quantity cookery, physics, textiles, table service, restaurant supervision, bacteriology, accounting and food costs, drafting, historic costume, fabrics, and many other pitfalls along our road to success. It is easy to look at these subjects written here, but it sure was tough to look at them when they headed a list of exam marks. As we read on we find that the degree course in Home Economics was planned to closely coordinate practical foods and administrative work with general cultural and science subjects. We didn't mind the food so much, but boy science and us sure didn't mix too well, especially that little course in organic chemistry where we had all those molecules floating around. The Dietetics course was planned to give a thorough training in the general field of dietetics and food administration. The course was open to both men and women, but it seems the men aren't too keen to wear those uniforms.

In cafeteria management course we were trained for positions in restaurants, tea rooms, hotels, etc. In other words, how to prevent from spilling the soup down the customer's back. It included instruction in wholesale buying, studying equipment, practice in cooking, and the making of menus. It was always so nice to answer the fellow's question, "Can you cook?" with a loud "Yes."

The course in costume construction, and the advance course in costume design prepared us for the clothing industry. It enabled us to tell good material from bad. With priorities affecting everything under the sun, the courses will come in handy when we have to design dresses from anything under the sun.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

THIS club is one of the National Home Economics clubs and has the honor of having the largest membership of the college clubs in the entire country.

All students enrolled in the day classes of the School of Home Economics are members of this club. Each year delegates are sent to the National Home Economics Club Convention, as well as to the State Convention.

The Club's main project this year has been to sponsor Red Cross knitting. An interesting Christmas program was presented at which a representative of Mademoiselle Magazine offered suggestions for selecting different and unusual Christmas gifts.

ARTISANS CLUB

THE ARTISANS CLUB is made up of students in Costume Construction, Costume Design, and those in Home Economic classes who are majoring in clothing. Its purpose is to acquaint its members with the happenings in the professional clothing work and enable them to keep up with the new ideas in clothing design.

DIETETICS CLUB

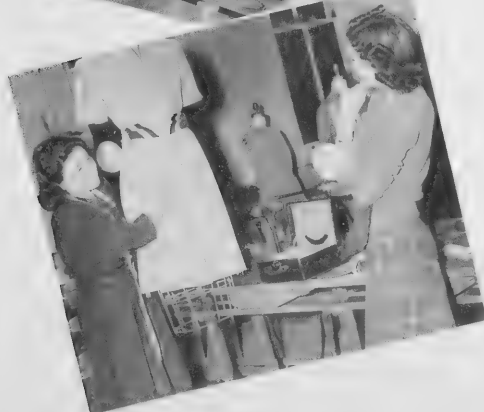

THE members of this Club include students in Dietetics, Cafeteria Management, and those in Home Economics classes who are majoring in foods.

The purpose of the Club is to stimulate interest in Dietetics. An attempt is made to establish a bond between scholastic and future professional lives.

This year the theme of club programs has been the role of dietitians in National Defense.

TOIL AND TROUBLE

SHALL we take a trip by boat through the channel of De Kalk into the port of 215 Ryerson Street? Good, lets be off.

Now that we have cast anchor let's alight and embark upon an adventure into the School of Home Economics.

The first person we meet is, "Joe", our very popular elevator man who unflinchingly and loyally ferries us up and down (not across) to our destinations. If he leaves us on the second floor, we are transposed to the school office where our shipmates obtain favorable and ominous news in the way of sealed envelopes on the bulletin board.

From there we may continue through classrooms where students are deeply absorbed in developing the depth of the so called mind.

Pots pans, smocks, green tin boxes, tape measures and shears are familiar signs at the school of Home Economics. One does not need to aspire to the tactics of Sherlock Holmes to guess what transpires behind locked doors and labs.

As we proceed, our guide will tell us of the many recent changes which have occurred in the school. First of all we proudly boast of our four year course which leads to a Bachelor of Science degree in Home Economics. This change was advantageous from the standpoint that it not only gives us a chance to meet our competitors of the outside world on an even keel, but also draws students who study foods and clothing closer and produces a better knit, more integrated whole. To appreciate what it has done, one has only to observe the students who specialized in clothing now taking foods and vice versa. One such student may be quoted as saying, "Imagine, they even have us boiling water to determine the boiling points?" We, who were food students wish to extend our sympathies to the clothing students when they attempt chemistry and we start draping.

By the way have you noticed the change in the uniform? It seems that for many years the girls literally battled to be emancipated from the blue and white. At long last we have the chic and smart dressmaker uniform to be grateful for. Many thanks.

Time is up, we shall have to get underway if we are to see further points of interest on our trip.

L I B R A R Y S C I E N C E

THE Library School is the second to be established in the country and is now the oldest school in continuous existence under the same auspices. Our purpose is to give a carefully selected group of students a professional education and so fit them for positions in all branches of librarianship, and to prepare them for the greater responsibilities which rest on libraries today. In view of these constantly increasing social obligations the Library School has revised its curriculum to meet the new needs of the institutions for which it educates. The School fulfills the requirements and standards of the accrediting body of the Board of Education for Librarianship of the American Library Association.

As a graduate School we are, of course, few in numbers, but this lack of size is more than made up in the closer association of faculty with students and students with each other. The School also remains true to the purpose for which the Institute was founded in that places are reserved each year for a few students who have had the professional experience, but who have not had the usual academic background. The connection of the School with the Library of Pratt Institute is very close, so our students are given the opportunity of observing and participating in the workings of an active library.

TO the majority of us, coming to library school without much of either professional background or specialized training, the year has been a new and strange experience, full of revelations and surprises; the emphasis on public speaking, way the course seems related to every other course, the significant difference between two and three spaces on a typewriter, and the stencils, stencils, stencils...

From the very beginning the class has been divided into various factions — those who smoke and those who don't; the natives and those from out of town; those who eat in the school cafe and those who prefer the juke box in the place around the corner; but with all this there is only close harmony in evidence.

The year has been punctuated by a series of academic and social events — Founder's Day, Miss Hansen's Tea, the Alumni Reception, the Alumni Luncheon, and the Fall Festival, in which it was regretted that so little part was played by the Library School.

An interesting feature of the fall term was an informal survey conducted within the class on the question of whether or not reading causes dandruff. While no definite decision has been reached as yet, much interesting evidence was brought forth by both sides. (One side should use Fitch's Shampoo. Advt.)

It was not until we first met the Alumni that we learned of our good fortune in being the first class to enjoy the elegant metal desks which were installed recently. Other changes in the School's fabric have been in the "Anne Carroll Moore Room," where most of the teas are held, (which must make Miss Moore feel a bit like Roxy or the shade of Lincoln) and, after December, the outburst of Latin-American flags which add so much to the baronial splendor of our marble hall. Recently the library vibrated from the sounds of many typewriters in the Library basement; they were people employed by the government to check over the library's catalogs and gather select information.

ATHLETICS AND SOCIETIES

BERKOW

A TRUE Pratt student will never forget the good times had at the basketball games down at the gym: — though we lost some we fought hard enough to make every game a thriller. Along with the games who can forget the shapely cheerleaders (we don't mean Sam-bach), the pep rallies with their new cheers, and the booming voice of the Pratt crowd.

PRATT VARSITY

AFTER the graduation services are over this year the Pratt Varsity Basketball team will be lacking in veterans for next year as many of the boys will be leaving. The squad this year was composed of:

Braccia
Corsi
MacPhee
Rapp
Cavataio
Aquino

Hollwedel
Graham
Raphael
Berry
Perdreux
Sibley

Although the men will be lost upon graduation, the coach feels certain that he has enough material on the Junior Varsity squad to compensate for their loss.

WELL, the basketball season is over, and the memories remaining are not favorable ones. Out of thirteen games played this year, the Cannoneers chalked up four victories; — we are certain that this was due to the unlucky number of games played, and we recommend that next year's squad be allowed to play only 12 or at the most 14 games, and by all means include the Alumni game as this was one game the varsity won.

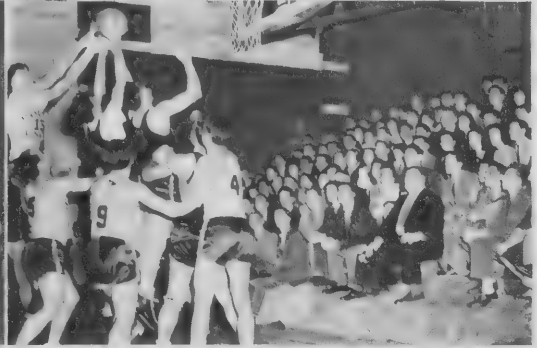

The first game was with Cooper Union and the Pep Rallies held after this game had an optimistic mood about them, for didn't we shellac Cooper by a score of 57 to 46?

As can be seen from the rest of the record even the Pep Rallies couldn't help us for Alfred, John Marshall, Camp Upton, and worst of all, Brooklyn Poly walked all over us. The Poly game was very disheartening as this was their first victory over the Cannoneers in a good many encounters. The soldiers had only six men on their squad, but they took the game by a one point margin.

Leave it to the good old Alumni to raise our morale. I think they let themselves be beaten by the score of 60 to 51 to help the boys along.

Losses to Panzer, Clarkson, and St. Lawrence didn't help matters any, but the boys got together and took Lowell Textile, and New York State Teachers for a ride. The final game of the season was with our old competitor — Brooklyn Poly. This game caused more excitement than any other game of the year. The gym was packed with rooters for both sides. The half saw the game fairly even, but the Poly men pulled away from their Pratt opponents to win 47 to 38.

GET IN THERE AND FIGHT

Brooklyn has more than Bums

UPSALA was royally trounced to the tune of 50 to 7. DiMaggio must have been around that day. It seemed to be a good day for everybody; all one had to do was to get hold of a bat and hit.

At Stevens the Cannoneers suffered their first defeat by a score of 2 to 5. Bové tossed a two hit game until the unlucky seventh when he was replaced by Kaplan who did a fine job of relieving.

New York State Teachers paid us a visit, and suffered defeat at our hands. Graham started the seventh with a base on balls; Marek singled to left, and then Aquino got on by an error. With a homer by Corsi, the Teachers decided to go back to teaching for the game was in the bag, 10-5.

Stevens was a jinx this year, because they dealt us a second defeat on their visit here. It was a free slugging affair with Marek and Montalto hitting homers, and Goodman coming in three times. It was tight until the end of the ninth when a Stevens' man homered and won the ball game 8 to 10. Although we took the New York State Teachers for a ride we did not have much luck with the Teachers from Jersey. The New Jersey State Teachers swamped us with a score of 5 to 12 and the less said about that game the better.

AS this issue of Prattonia goes to press, the current baseball season is starting. The turnout of manpower shows a lot of good material for Coach McKillop and the army to work on, but as most of last year's men are still on deck, we can expect a good season. Last year with an entire new battery; Braccia catching and Andres, Bové, and Kaplan pitching, the team wound up the season with four wins, and four defeats. As per usual many balls were knocked over the fence, but as yet no definite statistics as to the number of broken windows have come in. This year we hope the balls will continue to fly high and wide, but not too far as the baseball managers have quite a time in retrieving them. As usual the Alumni game was the most colorful and the best attended. The Alumni put up a good fight, but the varsity was too good for them and they went down 11 to 9.

push the underclassmen around . . . in sports

BOWLING, Pratt Institute's most popular year-round indoor sport, had one of the largest turnouts in its history during the past year. Sixteen teams were entered in the Interclass Bowling Tournament. This large number of entries brought about the formation of a freshman lunch league and a 4 o'clock league of upper classmen. The Third year Chemicals, Electricals, and Mechanicals were tied for first, but the Mechs won the playoff. Nilson (Mech III) had the highest individual average of

The second floor of the Men's Club holds up the tables with the green felt, there the artists with a cue try to uphold their prestige. The noon hours forever echo with the click of pool balls and the advice of kibitzers. As Prattonia goes to press, the Interclass Tournaments are in full swing, and it looks as if the Third Year Electricals, Mechanicals and Senior Mechs are going to fight it out to the bitter end.

Now that spring is just around the corner, and basketball is over, the boys are starting to talk softball. Started a few years ago, softball is now a major of the minor sports. With interest rising rapidly, 10 teams were entered last year and an equal amount are expected this year.

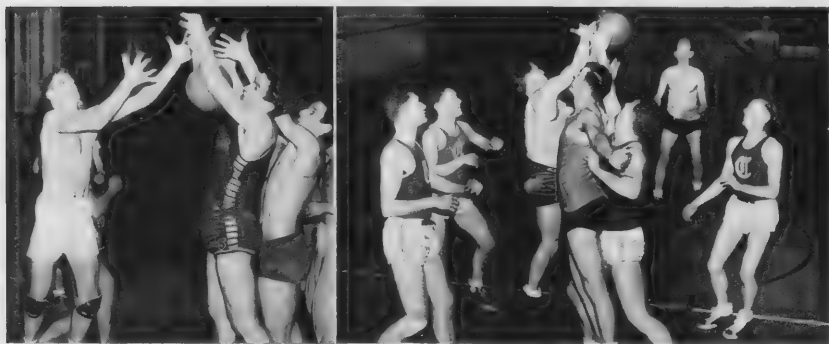

Prepared for any emergency

Interclass Sports

AT the end of a very successful season, as far as interest and participation is concerned, the Senior Mechanicals emerge victorious in the realm of interclass basketball. It was a victory hard won, for the competition was great, and at times it seemed as if luck had a lot to do with it. Practically every class in the Art and S. and T. School was represented and class spirit ran high. This feeling of good sportsmanship was carried over into the pugilistic arena, where hardy youths batted each other onto the canvas.

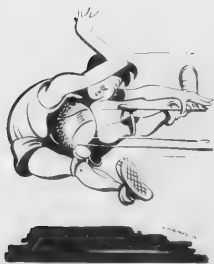

Still more pushing!

THE game of powerhouse, flying feet, and mud is touch football, where a touch can be anything from a mere brush to a 'gentle' push. As the sport which has the largest turnout, it was natural that the topic of general interest during the Autumn months was perpetually football. It was necessary to make up two leagues, the Lunch League and the 4 o'clock league so that all the teams could be entered. The play-offs were by the Mechanicals, winners of the Lunch League and the Artsmen, winners of the 4 o'clock league, with the Artsmen emerging victorious.

The Pratt "swimming pool" was the scene of great activity the past few months. Under the direction of Joe Potter, H.E.H., coach and life saving instructor, twenty-nine men from the S & T and Art School took the Senior Red Cross Life Saving course.

With the coming of cold weather, the table tennis players congregated on the upper floor of the gym and had it out. At present the tournament has not been completed, but the old champs have been defeated already, and from now on its guess,

WOMEN'S ATHLETIC COUNCIL

It is fortunate indeed that we have such an able group of instructors in the Women's Physical Education Department, who can help us keep fit so that we may do our part in the country's defense program.

Thanks to Miss Amy Phillips Gilbert, head of the Department of Physical Education for Women and her noteworthy assistants, Miss Brady and Miss Wells, the country's call for super physical specimens of femininity may be realized.

Under the supervision of Miss Brady the intricacies of modern dancing are mastered by the girls. From the results, her endeavors are certainly gratified, Miss Wells takes the girls through the hurdles in rough and ready sports as well as the more subdued routines of gymnastics.

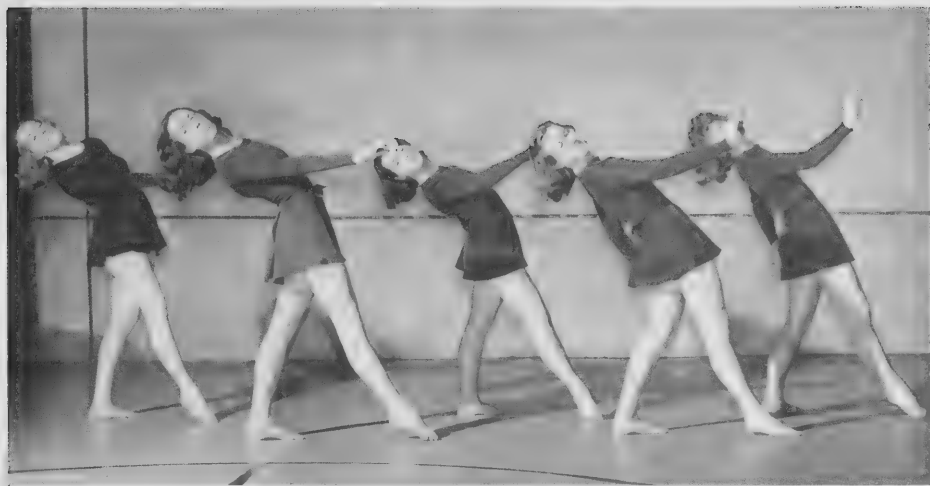

MEN'S ATHLETIC COUNCIL

THE great success of inter-class sports can be credited to the organization and ability of the Athletic Council. Mr. Wright, Athletic Director, and Coach McKillop, who guide the Council, have within the past years brought sports into such prominence that practically every male student at Pratt participates.

The main purpose of the Athletic Council, is to express the opinions and wishes of the student body, to regulate and control student activity, and to act as a medium through which student opinion may be presented to the Institute authorities.

This past year, the Athletic Council entered into the social activities about the school with great success. It conducted the sporting events for the Festival Day as well as a Varsity Dance in honor of the members of the basketball team. The profits from the dance are to be used for the purchase of a new scoreboard for the gym, which is greatly needed.

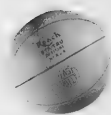

The gals don their rompers and rough it

ONE has only to make a point of sitting in on a class session at the gym, when the girls are getting in trim, gymnastically speaking, and there find specimens of feminine pulchritude comparable, yes, even surpassable to that of any reputed beauty — Venus de Milo if she be your zenith of femininity.

Pratt girls acquire their grace and charm, poise, beauty, and physical well-being by enjoying the opportunity of participating in all types of sports — hockey, basketball, baseball, fencing, dancing, volleyball, as well as setting up exercises.

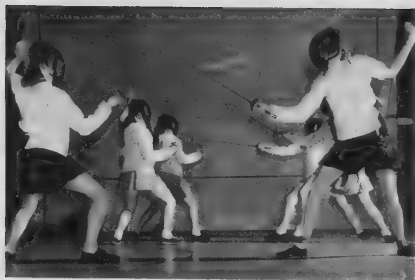

ONE Man Winter confines the girls' activities to indoor gymnastics. Of course snowball fights draw them outdoors. While indoors they play basketball, fence, and take up modern dancing.

When spring arrives again the girls can be seen trying to make up their gym cuts, to pave a clear road to graduation, for there is no graduation for those who leave their cuts accumulate. This is the most active gym period.

IN the spring, loud shouts in the courtyard disclose, upon investigation, fair damsels (the romper girls) scurrying about, each fighting for her team by almost pulling each others hair in the game of volleyball.

Baseball finds its place among the girls' favorites. Although there are no potential DiMaggios present the competition is keen enough to make one think back of the Yank-Dodger game.

Hockey climbs into the spotlight in the Autumn, and the girls can be seen on the athletic field swinging their clubs into the wind. Art. II took the coveted title this year from Costume Design II, by a score of 5 to 0.

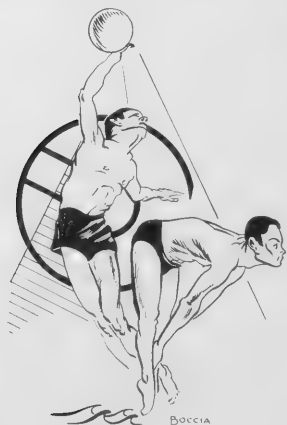

The Modern Dance Club has been foremost and always a perennial favorite among both the women and men students of Pratt. It is the women who execute the intricate steps of the Modern Dance and the men students who sit on the sidelines cogitating over the mammoth feet of these fair ladies. Classes are given for both beginning and advanced groups.

Ring up the curtain on school activities, the Prattler, under William Rand, editor-in-chief, opened its third year of production with the October 5 issue. Maturity brought increased responsibility as evidenced by the Prattler's assumption of the functions of the Institute News on alternate weeks.

During the past year the S. & T. paper, the Data Board with Henry George as editor, made a special added effort to have the Student Body better informed by keeping in closer contact with the central Student Government and it can be said that the Data Board has accomplished its aims.

stages its own beauty carnival

THE 1941 Fall Festival was held October 22, and although classes continued as usual during the morning, the afternoon was given over to general festivities.

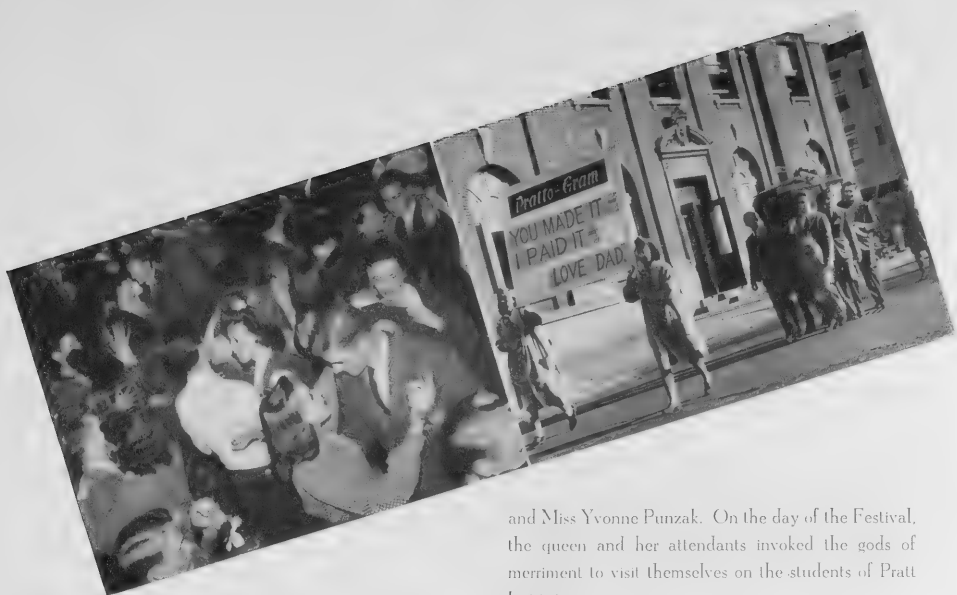

The coronation ceremony in the Library Park marked the opening of the Fall Festival. Mr. Richard Bolton, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Charles Pratt who, playing the role of Major of Atlantic City, made a short presentation speech and most dramatically placed the crown of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums on the head of the lovely queen, Miss Esther Renaud.

Weeks previous to the Festival, Miss Renaud and her court of four beauties had been chosen by the students from the Institute's store of feminine pulchritude. Miss Renaud's attendants were: Miss Gene Chicco, Miss Lucille Musser, Miss Bette Radon, and Miss Yvonne Punzak. On the day of the Festival, the queen and her attendants invoked the gods of merriment to visit themselves on the students of Pratt Institute.

The duties of the newly crowned queen began with reviewing a colorful parade, in which all the classes of the Institute were represented by floats, mascots, and walking tableaux.

Following the parade, the Faculty and students participated in athletic events. Then, when the darkness put an end to the sports calendar, the Festival moved in a body to the Gym where Sid Harris played for dancing, and where awards were presented to the classes with prize-winning floats.

At 7:30, the music stopped and the revellers made their reluctant way homeward. This had been a gay day of welcome for the Freshmen and everyone was already looking forward to the 1942 Fall Festival.

Activities Around

THE Flying Club was organized in the Spring of 1940, and those men that could still pass the physical tests after a year of nerve wracking engineering subjects were allowed to enroll in the course. They started you off with a nice introduction to future work; selling you life insurance at a nominal fee. Mr. Collard was selected as the club's faculty advisor, and has done a splendid job of watching the boys go up and hoping that they came down. Of course not all is taking place in the air, for there is a lot of ground work to learn. Programs of the club have included movies of the American Airlines, the Navy Air Training Corps, and others. The Debating club occupies an important niche in the extra-curricula activities of the school. Here members of the Institute have an opportunity to improve their speaking qualities and to meet many people.

The Institute

Membership in the Pratt Playshop is open to any member of the Student body that has some interest in the varied and intriguing phases of the theatre. The play presented each year demands a great deal of work not only from the persons who act out the drama but from the people behind the scenes. The play chosen this year was Emlyn William's, "Night Must Fall," which was ably directed by Jack I. Green.

Under the direction of Mr. Droge, the Glee Club meets twice a week for practice. The success of these meetings are evident when one looks back on the Founder's Day exercises as well as several Noon Hour Services, especially the Christmas Carol Service.

The school Band has been very active, and has been very helpful in playing at the basketball games, the Fall Festival, and at the Pep Rallies.

ONE of the school's most progressive organizations is the Engineering Student Board. It is composed of the class president of the Engineering school, and is under the leadership of a man elected from the previous Board. This Board has been responsible for the successful publication of the Data Board, and has been the major influence in conducting the very successful S & T dance at the Hotel Park Central.

ALONG with studies, we must have play and the best type most of us enjoy is the dance. The first dance of the school year is that given by the Third Year Chemical Engineers. This year the affair was attended by an overwhelming crowd. The S and T dance, which was held at the Park Central Hotel in New York City, was sponsored by the Student Board of the S and T School. ... How about those dances at the old "Rec" Hall????

WITHOUT a formal dance a school year would be incomplete. Pratt is fortunate in having several formals to relieve the strain of studying and increase the strains of financial worries. Decked out in their best duds the students are not easily recognized by their instructors who attend these dances.

Extra Curricular

Here and There

THE Pratt Institute Outing Club was organized to satisfy the growing desire to participate in outdoor sports and other activities by the members of the Pratt student body. The PIOC is a member of the Inter-collegiate Outing Club Association.

This organization helps the member clubs to get together and exchange ideas and to foster joint outings. Throughout the year there are numerous week-end outings sponsored by member clubs such as Dartmouth, RPI, Vassar, and Swarthmore. To date the club has traveled to Lake George, Stowe, Vermont for skiing, and they had a week of camping in the Adirondacks.

The Radio club, founded only three years ago, has grown to considerable proportions and prominence. Present activities of the club have been concentrated on the construction of a television receiver, and teaching the Morse Code to students. Inspection trips are conducted periodically to the prominent radio stations in the city. The training received by its members will be a valuable asset no matter what their future work may be.

C A M O U F L A G E

THE Art School of Pratt Institute launched its second year of the camouflage program. There are now two courses in camouflage, one is military camouflage and the other industrial. Many of the highest military officials of the War Department have come to Pratt on tours of inspection, and were very enthusiastic in their praise. The trustees of the school have been very generous in their help and have given permission for the use of their Glen Cove estates which because of the variety of the terrain has exceptional value for military camouflage. Mr. Boudreau the director of the Art School does a great deal of reconnaissance aerial photography that is invaluable to the students.

ONE of the proofs of the program's success lies in the fact that over 70% of last year's graduates who were inducted into the service, after having this course are doing camouflaging work in the Army. Most of them have advanced rapidly to the ranks of corporal or sergeant, and are worthwhile assets to the government.

THIS term, because of last year's success a new and more efficient curriculum has been written, guns and equipment have been built, and more information has been gathered.

BESIDES this, the use of Mr. and Mrs. Boudreau's plane for the service of the students in the course is of tremendous value.

R E A D Y — A I M !

THE only goal the school has set for itself is to render a service to the nation at large and to the students in particular. The students that graduate from this course and enter into active camouflage work will have the knowledge that they are doing their part to help the nation by hiding many of its military secrets in cloaks of invisibility. During this time of war it is definitely essential for the Art School to be on the alert, and keep up with the most contemporary steps for the artist. Everyday, with the news of new battles pouring in, there come reports of increasing camouflage efficiency, and new methods thought up by the men in the field. With every new report various investigations must be carried out to determine what type of camouflaging had been used and how effect it would be in the other theaters of the war: for one method used in the Malayan jungles will definitely not work on the Russian front. The students have the opportunity to construct models and later construct actual realistic scenes to test out the new material for its practicability. Any student who is interested enough in art to further his education in it, should do something in the art lines that will benefit his government, and also will be helping himself when he joins up and finds that he has a definite place in the scheme of things. Next year the course promises to be even better than before, and this shows the patriotic spirit of the American students.
